THE BROOKS FAMILY OF BENTON COUNTY

My earliest record is of Jeremiah Brooks, "Granpa Jere." The N.C. records show him as the father of David. We are sure he came to Tennessee, but returned to N.C., since he and his wife are buried in Ebenezer Baptist Church Cemetery, Person Co., N.C. My record of him came from the grave-stones and says he was born in Va., 1775, died Person Co., 1855; Married March 18, 1795, in Caswell Co., N. C., Elizabeth Thomas, born 1773, in Pa.; died Person Co., N. C., Feb. 6, 1871. Newton Brooks wrote me that these records seem to be reversed, since a Mr. Pleasant of Person County says we have the dates reversed and that Jeremiah, not his wife, lived to be 98. I am inclined to believe this is true, for my brother Paul remembers having been told of three uncles who lived to be very old--one 117, as I remember, and I think Jere was one of them.

Dad (Hiram Green) had a razor that was made in England by O. & W.L. Morton, that belonged to "Grandpa Jere." It was passed down to the oldest son, and he, Uncle Fate, gave it to Dad, who gave it to Paul. Children in Jere's will are: David (father of Hiram Comer) who is listed in "Brooks and Kindred Families."; Andrew, Green, Logan, Nancy, Jane Mastiel, Elizabeth, and Susan Neeley; one grand-daughter, Sarah Brooks.

We have been able to find records of eleven children of David Brooks. He was born in Caswell Co., N.C. in 1796, and was married 10-6-1816, to Elizabeth (Betsey) Terrell, Born 1800. He drove a wagon to Tennessee for a Mr. Heigie, a well-do-do man of those days and bought a farm in Flatwoods Church Community, which is near Ramble Creek Church in Benton County.

Both are buried in Flatwoods Cemetery. Following is a list of their children:

HIRAM COMER b. 12-8-1817, d. 4-17-1876 of pneumonia. In January, 1843 he married Sara Elizabeth Blalock, b. 5-26-1824, d. 9-1-1880 of Typhoid Fever. Both are buried in Ramble Creek Cemetery, in Benton County, Tennessee.

Soon after they married they left Brushy Creek near Raleigh, N.C. and came to Tennessee in an ox wagon, settling near Big Sandy. The house they lived in and in which Uncle Fate reared his family still stands and is in a wonderful state of preservation. Also the log smokehouse that he used is still standing and is usable.

There is a street in Raleigh, N. C. named "Brooks Street." I do not know who gets the credit for that.

LUCY W. born 1820

ANDREW born 1826. He married Arrener Wedding or Weeding and died in Van Buren, Arkansas, where he owned property. His daughter, Ella Cosgrove, willed his estate to the Methodist Church at Van Buren.

JONATHAN, born 1827. He married Elizabeth Blanchard and they had one child, Sara Elizabeth. On day, as she lay sleeping, he stood by the bed and looked at her for a long time, laid a silk handkerchief over her face; and left, never to be heard of again. Sara Elizabeth married Johnny Beasley (I judge of Benton Co.) and they had three children, Minor, Sadie, and Donny.

ELANSON MOORE, born probably about 1829; we have no record. He married Martha Hansell and since the children were born in Benton County, I am sure they are buried there.

JOHN probably comes here, born 1831. We think he is the John Brooks who married Martha Polk and went to Weakley Co., Tenn. and became an ancestor of Mr. George Brooks, who was for many years an outstanding citizen of Martin, Tenn. I understand he left rather a complete record of his family, and I have tried to get it, but received no reply to my request. Mrs.

Kellam has a copy.

2 NANCY M., born 1834. Married a Mr. Bradsher or Bradshaw.

2 ELIZABETH JANE, born 1837

2 EMILY F., born 1839. She and Lucy were old maids and lived together.

Emily finally married Mr. Billy Potts of Benton Co., Tenn. There were no children. I remember seeing her when I was a child--just barely remember an old lady dressed in black and being told "that is Aunt Emily Potts."

6 JEREMIAH, born 1841

11 BOB, born 1843. Both the name and the date are based on a letter dated 1952, from G. D. Brooks, South Boston, Va., to Roy Brooks, McMinnville, Tenn., which says; "My grandfather's name was Bob Brooks and Hiram Brooks was his brother. My father always spoke of him as "Uncle Hiram." I have heard my father say Uncle Hiram married and left for Tenn., and he never heard from him again. The names you mentioned as family names are definitely family names with us. It seems true that your grandfather Hiram and my grandfather were brothers." I have written more than once to South Boston, but have had no reply, so cannot be sure of his birth.

We thought it would give a clearer picture of the family if we listed the immediate family of David Brooks first and descendants later; so following are the records of David's sons, Hiram Comer and Elanson Moore and their descendants:

HIRAM COMER BROOKS married Sarah Elizabeth Blalock in January, 1843, and according to records "soon came to Tennessee." Cousins do not agree as to whether Uncle Al or Uncle Fate was a baby at the time, but if the 1843 date is correct, it would have to be Uncle Al. Grandmother never saw any of her people again except one brother who visited them. I am told that she was a very sad woman. Also, I am told that we get our brunette complexions from her; that the older Brookses were blonds. The children were:

- I. Albert, b. 10-25-1843. He slipped away from home to join the Confederate Arm and because of his age, was sent home to make peach brandy for the soldiers. He died 12-16-1865 and is buried at Ramble Creek Church, Benton County.
- II. Haywood Lafayette, b. 2-28-1845, d. 8-22-1921 of Typhoid Fever. He lived at the home place of Hiram Comer and Sara Elizabeth and after they died, Hiram Green and, I think Samuel Bedford and Bama, also, lived with them. He had great confidence in "Green's" ability as a doctor, and in his last illness, told the family to "Send for Green. If he can't do anything for me, nobody can." How it must have hurt Dad to think he could not help his own brother! He married 12-13-1866, Millie Jane Warmack, b. 2-2-1845. Both are buried in Ramble Creek Cemetery. The children are:

- A. William Hiram, b. 9-2-1867, at Big Sandy, Tenn., d. 1939, Houston, Texas, of paralysis. M. 1899 Alice Turner, Texas. He was an engineer for the M. K. & T. Railroad.
